FARMERS LOAN AND TRUST COMPANY RECORDS. 1929-1866.
4 boxes, 5 vols., 5 vols. (in microfilm).

When the Holland Land Company went out of business in 1835, the Farmers Loan and Trust Company, one of the earliest of the investment trust companies to commence operations in the United States, absorbed the bulk of its interest in the lands of Western New York. By 1840, the Farmers Loan and Trust had invested $2,647,071.50 through trusts in Allegany, Cattaraugus, Erie, Genesee, Livingston, Monroe, New York, Orleans, and Wyoming Counties. These records give the history of the various trusts between 1835 and 1856. They constitute an indispensable source of information for the student of agrarian history in New York State, and in the nation as a whole.

The records include abstracts of title, agreements of sale and articles of trust, copies of the deeds and the contract schedules used to transfer title, detailed maps of townships where the transfers took place, resolutions by officers of the company, powers of attorney to company agents, schedules of land and of mortgage foreclosures, bills of costs, accounts of cattle received in payments on mortgages, and other material relating to the management of the business. The 7 volumes include accounts for the Batavia and Buffalo Land Offices (1838-1842, 1848-1852, 1852-1855), land tables for the Batavia Land Office (1842-1857), a register of deeds for the Farmers Loan and Trust (1841-1866), schedules for mortgages for Cattaraugus and Allegany Counties (1833-1857), and appraisals of lands in Wyoming County (1847-1848). The microfilmed copies of the first five letter-books of the presidents of the company cover the period from the creation of the parent organization, the Farmers Fire Insurance and Loan Company, in 1832, to 1854; include hundreds of letters to agents, attorneys, and others, among them being Herman J. Redfield, Benjamin Pringle, Junius A. Smith, and John Lowber of Batavia, Washington Hunt of Lockport, Truman Lewis of Orangeville, Wyoming County, and Staley N. Clarke of Ellicottville, Cattaraugus County; and touch upon every aspect of the business, land sales, mortgage payments, foreclosures, defaulting, acceptance of payments in kind on land debts, and the like. Many of the letters in these volumes from the presidents, Henry Seymour, Lewis Curtis, R. C. Cornell, Dow D. Williamson, and from the secretary, R. K. Delafield, throw light on conditions in the money and security markets of New York, and show how the company gradually shifted its emphasis from land as a field of investment to state securities and to railroads. Included are letters to Horatio Seymour, Eratus Corning, James S. Wadsworth, Cornelius Vanderbilt, August Belmont, Charles Butler, George B. Upton, Bostonian railroad officials, Charles Williams of Philadelphia, Whiting and Adams of Detroit, and to foreign firms, the Rothschilds, Thomas Wilson and Company of London, and Hope and Company of Amsterdam.
