Reel Notes

Material relating to issues of interest to Abrams often appeared in various files and series. For this reason, cross-references are given for many of the entries in the guide. Wherever they appear, they are the last items in the entry and are keyed to the various series by the following abbreviations: B (Biographical Data); C (General Correspondence); O (Organizations); S (Studies); AS (Articles and Speeches); BM (Book Manuscripts); T (Topics); and SB (Scrapbooks). Dates, when given in cross-references, are in the following form: 2117162 (February 17, 1962); or 3159 (March 1959). Names of organizations listed in cross-references are indicated by shortened forms or initials only: New School (New School for Social Research); or NYSCAD (New York State Commission Against Discrimination).

General Correspondence

Reels 2–10

This series was called "Administration" by Abrams and includes all personal and administrative correspondence not directly related to other series. It is arranged alphabetically by the name of the correspondent and then chronologically within each correspondent file. There are frequent enclosures. The guide lists significant correspondents indicating the number of letters from each person and the dates of the letters. Names with asterisks (*) beside them are those men and women whose files Abrams kept in a separate folder.

Organizations

Reels 11–18

Files on seventy-eight organizations, agencies, and universities in which Abrams was an active participant are arranged alphabetically by name and chronologically within each file. Names of organizations are written out in this series of the guide. (They are designated by shortened forms or initials only in cross-references.) The names of individuals in the listing for an organization identify the people who usually wrote on the official letterhead. Extensive files are subdivided with the correspondence coming first. Classroom lectures, when available, are reproduced here, under the names of the institutions, rather than in the Articles and Speeches series. Newsletters and multicopied materials for mass distribution by organizations were not filmed.

Studies

Reels 19–25

The major studies done by Abrams appear alphabetically by the geographical location of the investigation. The documents are filmed the way they were kept, showing the chronological progression of each study. First, come the correspondence and agreements arranging for the study; then, the drafts and sketches preceding the finished report are filmed. After the report itself, sometimes in more than one format, come the reviews, critiques, and correspondence generated by the study. In a few instances, there were no written reports, and one file is included to illustrate a preliminary correspondence that did not result in a contract. As in the Organizations series, the names of correspondents involved significantly in the study are listed. Researchers interested in making a meticulous examination should also consult the Topics series that includes reference information on each area.

Articles and Speeches

Reels 26–35

Written public statements made by Abrams appear in chronological order beginning in 1935. Location is given only for speeches outside of New York City. An exception to the chronological listing is the New York Post articles (1947-53); these appear at the end of the series, followed by correspondence referring to Abrams's work for the Post, arranged chronologically. Correspondence relating to local arrangements comes before the item. Four brief, taped speeches have been transcribed and the results filmed in their appropriate chronological places. The tape itself is available only for the WCBS interview. An oral history interview, conducted by Dr. Bluma Swerdloff for the Oral History Research Office of Columbia University, is filmed (under May 1964) with the permission of that office. An asterisk (*) preceding a title in the guide indicates that the file contains correspondence relating to that speech or article but that there is no copy of the statement itself. Some copies of articles and speeches also appear in the scrapbooks. The titles are frequently working titles; they often changed with publication. Facts have not been verified beyond the information in the collection.

Topics

Reels 39–51

Containing reference materials used by Abrams, notes, correspondence, and clippings, the topical files appear alphabetically by subject and chronologically within each file. Extensive files, such as "Discrimination," are often broken down into subdivisions, arranged alphabetically under the general topic and chronologically within each subdivision. Most of the studies Abrams did are represented in the Topics files. These files do not contain any of his own work, however; that is in the Studies series. Copyrighted material and government documents have been removed. These files are particularly valuable because they frequently contain unique documents and because items from a wide range of sources are gathered together by subject.
