Stein, Clarence S., 1882-1975.
Papers, 1905-1983.
30 cubic ft.

Architect, city planner. Clarence S. Stein began his career as an architect, but turned his attention to planning by the early 1920s. From 1923 to 1926 he was chairman of the New York State Housing and Regional Planning Commission and was among the founders of the Regional Plan Association in 1923. With his partner Henry Wright, he was a leading proponent of the "garden city" concept of planning. He designed or participated in the design of Sunnyside Gardens, Queens, New York; Radburn, New Jersey; Greenbelt, Maryland; Greendale, Wisconsin; Greenhills, Ohio; and Baldwin Hills Village, Los Angeles, California. Stein was awarded the Gold Medal of the American Institute of Architects (1956), the Distinguished Service Award of the American Institute of Planners (1958), and the Ebenezer Howard Memorial Medal, honoring the British advocate of garden cities.

Summary: Includes job files, proposed jobs, writings and speeches, general files, research materials, and reprints and articles. Job files record Stein's involvement in the design of public buildings, places of worship, museums, and homes; his time as secretary of the Housing Committee of the New York State Reconstruction Commission under Governor Alfred W. Smith; and material on Radburn, New Jersey; Kitimat, British Columbia; Sunnyside Gardens, New York; Hillside Homes, Bronx, New York; and Chatham Village, Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania. Proposed job files include plans and designs for jobs which never materialized. Writings include material related to the publication of his book, TOWARD NEW TOWNS FOR AMERICA, including photos, plans, and maps used in the book. Also includes copies of articles and speeches by Stein. General files include unpublished writings; reports on greenbelt towns; material on the Regional Plan Association of America and its successor, the Regional Development Council of America; and community planning and cost studies. Correspondence files include personal and professional correspondence with other planners, including correspondence with the American Institute of Architects (AIA), especially Carl Feiss of that organization; Canadian planners working on Metropolitan Toronto; English planners; personal friends such as Benton MacKaye, Albert Mayer, and Lewis Mumford; and his wife, Aline MacMahon Stein.

Clarence S. Stein, 1882-1975. Papers, 1905-1974.

Scope and content notes (draft, Janet Hodgson, April 1975)

This collection of 21 - 16" boxes (Annex) and 2 oversize boxes (Olin) of plans and blueprints contains the professional papers of the late Clarence S. Stein. Mr. Stein sorted and divided his own material and with but two additions, research material and a box of other people's writings, the basic integrity of Mr. Stein's own sorting remains.

A most organized man, Mr. Stein provided us with an index to his life and work, to be found in the black loose-leaf notebook in Box 1. Beginning with letters discussing the disposal of his papers, an index and alphabetical listing indicating where major works are to be found within the material, Mr. Stein, working in roughly 10-year time spans beginning with his family history, outlines his professional career and includes sections on friends and associates, honors received, and travels.

Following Mr. Stein's basic divisions, this collection has been arranged into 8 sections: Jobs and Proposed Jobs; Writings and Speeches, General File; Research File; Correspondence; Photos, Plans, Maps and other Illustrations; Reprints and Articles of other professional planners.

Arranged in chronological order, Job Files reflect Mr. Stein's varied interests in his field. He was an architect for public buildings (1:2 & 5), places of worship (1:34), museums (2:2 & 3) and private residences (1:6) and he was interested in public housing serving on Gov. Alfred W. Smith's Reconstruction Commission for the State of New York as Secretary of its Housing Committee (1:11-14). His interest in new town development is reflected here in Radburn, N.J. (1:18-33) and Kitimat, B.C. (2:38-45 and 3:1-28) and in self-contained garden cities and other housing developments with emphasis on garden apartment complexes such as Sunnyside Gardens, N.Y. (1:8-10), Hillside Homes, Borough of the Bronx, N.Y. (2:4-12) and Chatham Village, Pittsburgh, Pa. (1:39-40). Proposed Jobs reflects ideas, designs and plans for jobs which never materialized (3:35-39 and 4:1-29).

The second large area in the collection reflects Clarence Stein's Writings and Speeches. In Box 4 is found material dealing with the publishing of his book, Toward New Towns for America, with photos, plans and maps used in the book also in evidence. Boxes 5 and 6 produce in chronological order copies of his articles and speeches as listed by Mr. Stein.

The General File, also arranged in chronological order, includes the records of many interests such as his unpublished writing (11:20-27) including several books (7:16 & 17, 9:27-50 and 10:1-62), his resettlement reports for Greenbelt towns in 1935 (7:10-15), and Greenbelt disposal in 1951-1953 (9:4-26), his material on the Regional Plan Association of America, and its successor, the Regional Development Council of America (7:3 & 9:12-21), and Community planning studies and cost studies (7:32-41 and 7:42-64).

An addition to Mr. Stein's order was a section of research material (boxes 11, 12, and 13), reference material collected on the Tennessee Valley Authority, on research facility locations in the suburban New York City area, on industrial and metropolitan dispersal in the United States, plus material collected in countries outside our borders on new town development, as in Sweden (12:9-24) and in England (12:25-43 and 13:1-11).

The Correspondence File, arranged in alphabetical order, establishes his written contact with other planners on a personal as well as a professional basis. Found in boxes 14, 15 and 16, here is his correspondence with such organizations as the American Institute of Architects (AIA) (14:6-13) and his committee work within that organization in concert with such people as Carl Feiss, correspondence with Canadian planners who were working on Metropolitan Toronto (14:30-32), with English planners (14:52-54) and 15:1, 2), as well as with personal friends Benton MacKay (15:29-35), Albert Mayer (15:37-40) and Lewis Mumford (16:1-6).

Box 17, Photos, Plans, Slides, Negatives, and Maps includes visual illustrations of much of Stein's major work, such as plans and photos for Sunnyside Garden, N.Y. (17:2, 3) and Radburn, N.J.; photos, some not used in his book, Toward New Towns for America (17:5-7), Greenbelt plans, maps and aerial photos (17:9-18), plus 6 boxes of negatives and several boxes of lantern slides.

The last category, Reprints and Articles of other professional planners, reflects the thoughts of other planners. Some of the more prolific are Frederick Ackerman (18:2), Catherine Bauer Wurster (18:9 & 10), Russell VanNest Black (18:12), Henry Churchill (18:19), Vernone De Mars (18:22), Arthur Glikson (18:29), Eugene Klaber (18:38), Benton MacKay (18:42-46), Albert Mayer (18:48-51), Lewis Mumford (18:53-55) and Henry Wright (18:72).
