

"GREAT WESTERN" CHAMPAGNE

AND GOOD NURSING

SAVED THE LIVES OF SOLDIERS

BANISHED PALLOR FROM CHEEKS;

MADE LIFE WORTH LIVING.

These pictures tell their own story. (Photographed from Life.)

"GREAT WESTERN" CHAMPAGNE was the tonic used for many a convalescent soldier. It acted like magic in its revivifying effects.

"Goodbye, my dear nurse—you shall be linked in my memory along side of 'GREAT WESTERN' CHAMPAGNE. I can hardly decide which did me the most good."

A Physician's Testimony.

I have had marked curative results in the use of "GREAT WESTERN" CHAMPAGNE, made by your company, following the most severe attacks of "Cholera Morbus." Toning up the stomach, bringing back its vigor, and promoting appetite. One of the worst cases of this disease I have ever seen was under my care a few weeks ago. Though all the symptoms had been subdued by proper treatment, yet the patient, who had not partaken of food for two days, was fully restored as to appetite and strength in a most surprising manner by sipping small glasses of the "GREAT WESTERN" made very cold by placing on ice.

From an Old Lady.

MRS. G. ———, Mount Vernon, N. Y., writes:

"GREAT WESTERN" CHAMPAGNE has prolonged my life several years. I take one pint each day, sipping it when I feel weak. It tones up the system and sharpens my appetite. Foreign wines are too harsh and do not have the same effect.

It is only in recent years that we have been convinced that "GREAT WESTERN" CHAMPAGNE is a gentle and effective tonic. It has won its way everywhere as a champagne equal to the best foreign vintages. We are compelled to recognize its curative properties as well, because of the many unsolicited testimonials being received.
